

HIGH SCHOOL INTERSHIPS WITH SENATOR STEVENS

An internship in Washington, D.C., opens doors to new opportunities. Alaska students graduating from high school have the option to intern in our nation's capital as members of Senator Stevens' staff. You will meet with the Senator at least once a week to ask questions and discuss the activities of the Senate. Working with staff, you will help with constituent relations and other day-to-day operations. High school interns visit many of the landmarks and attractions the Washington area has to offer: the Nationals baseball team, Gettysburg, Smithsonian museums, the White House, and more.

Please see reverse for more information and APPLY TODAY!

DETAILS

Calendar. The High School Internship program consists of two sessions. Both sessions have about 10 openings. The first session runs from June 2 through June 30 and the second session runs from July 7 to August 4. When applying, please indicate if you could participate during either session.

The workday. During the day, roughly 9:00 am through 5:30 pm, high school interns are expected to participate in group activities and help with office tasks. After hours are unstructured. Students are welcome to see cultural events, hang out at the dorms, participate in pickup sports on the National Mall, etc.

Pay. High school interns are paid roughly $900 (before taxes) every two weeks. Your first paycheck will come roughly three weeks into the program and your final check will be after you return home. Please be aware of this pay schedule and plan accordingly.

Housing. All high school interns house at George Washington University. Munson Hall, which we have already confirmed, is located steps from the Metro. Rooms are either doubles or triples and sized accordingly. Rooms have a kitchen, separate living area, cable, and internet access with the purchase of the appropriate equipment (approx. $15). Students are responsible for paying housing costs which run under $1000 for the month.

See also: <http://gwired.gwu.edu/hc>

Getting around town. There is no need for a car in Washington, D.C.! The Metro system is clean, convenient, and cost effective. In addition to salary, you will receive a Metro subsidy.

See also: <http://wmata.com>

Other activities. In previous years high school interns have visited the beach and Gettysburg, taken in a Nationals or Orioles game, spent a day at an amusement park, and seen a good many Washington landmarks. Some of these excursions do cost money. Two minivans will be available for transportation to locations that are not Metro accessible. Interns will be asked to help cover gas costs.

DEADLINE. The application deadline for high school interns is March 16, 2007.

More Questions? Contact Senator Stevens' Intern Coordinators, Patrick Kerley or Robyn Engibous, at (202) 224-3004.

Also online at <http://stevens.senate.gov/intern>